

Dislocutions

by Bill Yarrow

My ex-boyfriend is serving time in Attica.

The wedding colors will be ochre, black, anisette, and beige

Politically, the coalition failed due to a lack of application of confluence

Leonard sat in the shaded corner of the deck

The opposite of "lui," she explained, is "elle"

It's futile. Can't you see it's futile?

I shall season your petition with gravity

Come, I will show you the way to Hillcrest

Not I! Not I! Not I! Not I! Not I!

To a cinematographer, color is a drug (Michel Jean)

You've never read Klopstock?

If you want me, I'll be on the lanai

Unaccommodated woman; overaccommodated man

Artichokes with ginger, cube steak with fennel, potatoes with nutmeg

The cymbal concert will be Tuesday in the Taj Mahal of Ontario

A sentence which reserves its inventive zest for the end is called periodic

My favorite writer? Quintilian

She wanted to put the "o man!" back in romance

A letter written from the bottom up would end with the salutation

I went to Japan and all I got was this lousy tanka

Assonance in "Ulysses"

Bellicose boys. Jericho noise. Varicose veins

Shakespeare, Cowper, Blake, Wordsworth, Yeats: all Williams

Q: This name in Basque means "owns a new house." A: What is "Xavier"?

A Perfect Day for Banana or The Bride Comes to Yellow

I need to reread The Prisoner of Zenda

