The Guardian of Starlight

by Bill Yarrow

now the days are empty and time has lost its head I am the bloodworm crawling in pin earth the greedy mosquito in love with the naked baby, the red mole burrowing the butterfly dust here comes the involuntary spider with the emerald web around his throat