

The Turning

by Gary Hardaway

The leaves that turn are turning ochre, russet, flame red, incendiary orange.

A brief colorful season and then the fall as winds break the hold the leaves have and after that the snarl and whine of the leaf blowers marshaling the fallen into piles. The bags fill, the bins of compost heap and warm.

