

What We Know but Can't Describe

by Gary Hardaway

We know the really big and ever expanding things: Love. Beauty.
Art. Wisdom. Justice. Mercy.
We know them just enough
to recognize them when we find them.

But, pressed to define each one,
we fail. Have ever failed.
But, we try again each day as if our lives depend upon our knowing them. Which, of course, they do.

