

The Angel Closes the Rain

by Jerry Ratch

I may have gone

A little soft in the brain
But I swear I still see it
The angel closes the rain

Even God has got to refrain
From causing us pain
When the angel closes the rain
So the angel closes the rain

At the end of time
The angel must close the king's reign also
And decides who has to Poison the king

And God defers to the angel
Who closes the rain
In order to put an end
To all that pain

And the angel knows
It's harder to let them go
Than it was to hold them
So the angel closes the rain

Even God has got to refrain
From causing us pain
And the angel closes the rain
The angel closes the rain

But it's also possible that
The angel closes the rain

Because the angel forgot
To open the umbrella

