

Why I Love You

by Jerry Ratch

I love you because your eyes are both crossed
When you do it, because you're focused
On the inside of the universe

I love you because
You're on a roller coaster
Through life
And I can ride along
For the thrill of it

I love you because
Of the laughter
That surrounds us both
When we are near each other

I love you because you
Know what to do
With your lips

I love you because
There's a light moving toward me
In the sky when you come near
And you are the star that appears

I love you because
I think I was lucky
To meet you
And that kind of luck
Ain't so easy to find
Anymore

I love you because you told me once

I was even better than your Weimaraner, Alfie
And that I needed to give myself
More credit
