

Crash

by Steven Gowin

My god. It never ends
First the wreck of things
Beads of glass in a purse
Appearing at random

Later, maybe already
The wreck of moments, flashes
A déjà vu of violent ruin
Broken film spliced poorly

Choice is victim but survivor
And continuance demands order
Everything in its place
Such an odd and horrible gift

