Easter

by Anne Elezabeth Pluto

Easter

the emerald parlor remembered, come yourself to convince me now impose vourself firm to the maroon furrow that is my heart. Interloper, make your mayhem here, where I have been miserable - christen me this burglar who has stolen time and time again my sins rise, duplicate with yours, a column of white ash, our own promiscuous rupture of faith. I will give you back the way home assent from the cross gnaw through me to my bone and there write beautiful the names of all our dead in your salt milk be my confessor coax me, plunge sincere the epistle of silence handwriting on the wall and beside me, the cross lay sown, mount me glaring move finally bruised in the disjointed

Available online at "http://fictionaut.com/stories/anne-elezabeth-pluto/easter" Copyright © 2012 Anne Elezabeth Pluto. All rights reserved.

homily of sex from which we will abstain, but not to disappoint, the long lure of love burns celestial in the dark to domesticate the night, each star numerous in its power to assail us now, in our charter of rebirth.