We Must Be Carefully Taut

by Bill Yarrow

Courage. Coraje! There's nothing behind Puerto Numero Tres. Pay no attention to the cabeza in the transom. In the dread of night, navigate by the sliver moon, pero cuidado: no road leads to magnetic north.

Do you remember, amigo, how to give change for a dollar? Six nickels and seven dimes. Three quarters, two dimes, and one nickel. Sixteen buffalo nickels and two liberty dimes.

Or a boxful of slugs and a pair of brass knuckles; a leather sap, a gravity knife, and mercury gloves. El mundo es un lugar peligroso, the earth is a fearful domain. Remember, gringo, you used to live there.
