

Event Particle

by stephen hastings-king

She says her name is Venetia. Like the blinds. She is a manifold of temporal flows. Her figures include dotted white lines that connect your hand to between her legs. You follow them into daydreams while she composes herself from sentences. She is young. She says stupid things.

